General Information.

The Location

on an eminence on the western shore of Narragansett Bay, is of surpassing beauty, presenting a view of both shores of the Bay, with its peninsulas and islands, covered with cultivated farms and beautiful residences, and more remotely, of various towns and cities in Rhode Island and Massachusetts ; while in the rear and on either side are extensive inland views of fields and forests. Those who have visited Europe pronounce the view from the Institution equal to that of the Bay of Naples. No school of the kind gives the sea-side advantages which are here enjoyed. Salt water bathing, sailing, rowing, and in winter skating, facilities for which are ample, combine with the salubrity of the climate to render this one of the most healthful localities in the world. Being in the southern section of New England, the climate is more mild and equable than the Eastern States generally ; the winds being tempered by the ocean, which, though not far away, is not so near as to impart the usual harshness to breezes blowing from the sea.

Pupils from the interior requiring a change of air may here pursue their studies under the most salutary hygienic conditions.

Serious sickness with us is almost entirely unknown. Our students almost universally leave school in better health than when they enter. This is a matter of the greatest importance in the selection of a boarding-school. The location of an institution on low land amid miasmic mists, with the consequent defective drainage, has often sown too surely the seeds of fatal disease.

Means of Access.

We are on the main line from New York to Boston, only fourteen miles from Providence, twenty from Newport, fifty-six from Boston, and one hundred and seventy-six from New York. Trains connect with these places several times a day. The Stonington Line passes through this place. Steamer from New York to Stonington, thence via rail to this place and Providence. The fare from New York to Providence is now only one dollar.

History.

This institution was established in its present location in the year 1802, as the Kent Academy. It was the second school of the kind in the State, and has continued to the present time without the interruption of a single year. From its founding to the year 1839 it was conducted as a stock Academy; it then passed for a few months into private hands, but upon the organization of the Providence Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it in 1841, became the property of the conference by purchase.

The Design

of the school is to furnish the best possible facilities for a thorough culture in all departments of academic instruction under decidedly religious influences. The increasing secularity and sometimes even immoral influences of our public schools render the demand for denominational institutions absolutely imperative. No amount of education and worldly culture can at all compensate for a ruined character, and the period of school life is the time when character is generally formed.

The associations and influences resulting to our boys and girls from the daily travel on the railroad to and from our large cities in attendance upon school, are often pernicious in the extreme. Compelled in many instances to wait in the city each day for hours after dismissal from school, they are exposed without the least restraint from either parents or teachers, to all the allurements and temptations of the street. No wonder that after a few months of such exposure parents too frequently awake to realize that the character of their beloved son or daughter is undermined. Who is willing to run this risk for the sake of a few dollars saved over the expense of a good, home-like boarding-school with its Christian teachers and kindly oversight?

Although under the control of a single denomination, the religious teaching is non-sectarian, and frequently the majority of the students are from other than Methodist families. It is the earnest endeavor of the teachers to induce those committed to their care, to lead a Christian life. Through personal intercourse and the social religious meetings, scarcely a term passes without the conversion of some to Christ.

services are held each morning in the chapel, and students attend preaching on the Sabbath, at such church in the village as they or their guardians may choose. A prayer-meeting, conducted by the Principal, is held in the Academy, each Sunday and Wednesday evening, and a Bible service each Sabbath.

Buildings and Grounds.

The Academy grounds contain five acres, giving an ample play-ground, and a lawn beautifully laid out and ornamented with trees and shrubbery. Upon these grounds stand the Boarding-hall, Winsor House, and the Academy, all of which are commodious, airy, and well arranged for comfort.

The boarding-hall is supplied with hot and cold water, bath rooms, and other conveniences. All the beds are furnished with hair matresses. The Winsor House is the residence of the principal, where also room other of the teachers.

The Academy building is of brick, a tasteful, substantial structure, and is believed to be unsurpassed in any institution of the same grade. It contains ample and commodious recitation rooms, besides parlor, office, library, reading-room, cabinet, and one of the finest seminary chapels in New England.

Heating and Lighting.

The buildings throughout are warmed with steam and lighted with gas, a very important item, reducing to a minimum the risk from fire, and saving the student the annoyance of caring for stoves and of filling and trimming lamps.

Libraries, Cabinet, and Museum.

The Institution has a Library; and members of the school have access also to the excellent Free Public Library of the town, which is but a few rods from the Academy grounds.

The Cabinet of Geological and Mineralogical specimens, and the Museum, illustrating the history, habits, and customs of various nations, embrace about three thousand specimens, and are rarely surpassed in variety and completeness.

Apparatus, &c.

The Institution has a good Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus; a Stereopticon; a set of English Astronomical Slides, showing the various, real, and apparent motions of the heavenly bodies; a fine collection of Levy's Lantern views; a French Eudiometre; a powerful Electric Machine with a twenty-four inch plate; Wightman's Gasometers, and a fine set of gas-bags, to be used with the Drummond Light, etc., are included.

Societies and Reading-Room.

The "Philognothian" and the "Adelphian" societies of gentlemen, and the "Aletheon," a society of ladies, hold stated meetings for discussions and other literary exercises.

A large and well conducted Reading-room is supplied with the most valuable and popular papers and periodicals from various portions of the country.

The Fine Arts.

The Studio is large and well-lighted. It is furnished with all needful appliances for the successful prosecution of the studies of this department.

The Course in Drawing includes instruction in Straight and Curved Lines, Angles, Geometrical Figures, sketching from the Flat, from Casts, and from Nature.

The course in Painting,—including Oil, Water Colors, Sepia, and India Ink,—embraces Landscape and Marine Views, Fruit and Flowers, the Human Figure, Animal Forms, etc. Candidates for graduation are required to study Sampson's Art Criticism.

Students who complete the course in Drawing and Painting will receive a Diploma.

Instruction in Wax Flowers is also provided in this department.

Occasional lectures on Art and an occasional visit to the Art Galleries of Boston will be accorded to the students in this department Declamation and Composition.

Exercises in Declamation are required of the gentlemen, and in Reading or Recitation of the ladies, and in composition of all the students: advanced students render these in public at the Rhetorical Exercises, held in the Chapel, each Friday evening. The Seniors will deliver original orations before the school each term.

Reading and Elocution.

Students in the English course will be placed in a reading-class taught by the teacher of Elocution, without extra charge.

An advanced class in reading Shakespeare will be formed each term, to which a small admission fee will be charged. Private lessons in Elocution can also be had at a moderate cost.

Prizes.

1. The ALLEN PRIZE ($15), the gift of S. W. K. Allen, Esq., of East Greenwich, will be awarded in two sums of $10 and $5, to those two lady students who shall excel in Reading or Recitation.

2. The GREENE PRIZE ($15), the gift of Daniel H. Greene, M. D., of East Greenwich, will be awarded in two sums of $10 and $5, to those two gentlemen students who shall excel in Declamation.

3. The BROWNING PRIZE ($10), the gift of William G. Browning, of East Greenwich, to that gentleman or lady who shall deliver the best original essay or oration.

The contest for the above prizes to take place on anniversary week.

4. The PRINCIPAL'S PRIZE ($15), $10 to that boarding student and $5 to that day student who, continuing a year in school, shall attain the highest standing in deportment, scholarship, and punctuality in attendance upon school duties.

The prizes at the last two anniversaries were awarded as follows:—

	1878.	1879.
1. The ALLEN PRIZE.
1st Prize, $10.00 . .	Miss Alice Crompton . .	Miss Emma J. Blakeslee.
2d Prize. $5.00 . . .	Miss Gertrude Vinal . .	Miss Clara A. Mowry.
2. The GREENE PRIZE.
1st Prize, $10.00 . .	J. E. C. Lagergreen . . .	Daniel P. Burdick.
2d Prize, $5.00 . . .	Ithiel T. Johnson	Byron J. Lillibridge.
4. The PRINCIPAL'S PRIZE.
1st Prize, $10.00 . .	Miss Eva L. Rolman . .	Frederick L. Hall.
2d Prize, $5.00 . . .	Miss Ella V. Burr . . .	Arthur P. Johnson.

Lectures.

During the year a Course of Lectures will be delivered before the students by distinguished speakers from abroad. Several prominent persons have lectured during the past year.

Boarding.

Students who do not board themselves or with their relatives, will INVARIABLY board in the Institution, occupying the same buildings and sitting at the same table with the teachers. In this way, the students have all the incentives and impulses of student-life in a far greater degree than when they live apart, or in private families, and have all the advantages of the constant watch, care, and assistance of teachers, as they cannot be had in any other mode of school-life. The food is subtantial, nourishing, healthful, and abundant. Parents who are considerate of the health of their children will refrain from sending them boxes of rich pastry, and none such can be allowed to enter the Institution.

Furnishings, &c.

Each room is furnished with a bedstead and bedding, table, stand, chairs, pail, gas-fixtures, and heating apparatus. Mirrors, wash-bowls, and pitchers are provided at a fair price; and if returned in good condition at the close of the term, the price will be refunded. Students furnish brooms, sheets, pillow-cases, towels, napkins, curtains, and carpets if they wish them. All, particularly ladies, are advised to carpet their rooms. Those who desire carpets and superior furnishings for their rooms can be accommodated at an extra charge. Students are responsible for any improprieties or damages committed in their rooms. Damages of a general nature will be assessed upon the students in such a manner as may be judged best by the Faculty.

Students rooming alone will pay extra for light and heat.

Every article for the wash should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name, in indelible ink. Every lady should be provided with an umbrella, India rubber overshoes, and water-proof cloak.

Students furnish their own books and stationery, which are kept in the Institution, and supplied at fair prices.

Traveling Expenses.

Students who desire to board at home, and come to school each day in the morning, and return in the afternoon, by way of the Stonington railroad, can obtain tickets at greatly reduced rates.

Admission.

Satisfactory assurances of good moral character, and a willingness to abide by the regulations laid down for the government of the school, are required; and a candidate coming from another school must bring testimonials of good character and standing in such school. Students preparing for the ministry will find it to their advantage to communicate with the Principal.

Military Drill.

Arrangements have been made with the State authorities by which those students wishing to become familiar with the military drill can have the daily use of arms and the State's Armory, located just across the street from the Academy. A proficient officer will give instruction.

Note to Parents and Guardians.

☞ Students should enter school at the beginning of the term. Those coming a few days late are much embarassed and embarass others.

Students should not seek excuses during the term for the purpose of visiting at home or elsewhere, and in no case except when the most urgent considerations render absence unavoidable. A short absence occasions serious disadvantage.

Parents should not allow their children to leave the Academy for trifling causes, and should never give them permission to leave until after having consulted the Principal. Students should, if possible, reach here on Monday, as the classes will be permanently arranged on Tuesday. Students must be present the first day of each term to claim their rooms, or they may assigned to others.

It is earnestly advised that all moneys for the use of the younger students be deposited with some officer of the Academy, and that no expenditure be allowed except under the direction of such officer. Parents who understand the importance of this advice will not neglect it. The officers will not feel responsible for evil habits acquired by students in consequence of neglect to heed this suggestion.

Physical Culture.

One of the best means of obtaining systematic and general physical exercise, for persons of sedentary habits, is the HEALTH LIFT, which is rapidly gaining popularity. The authorities of the school have accordingly placed one of these machines in the ladies' department. Exercise thereon will be under the direction of the Preceptress.

The unusual facilities offered for sailing and rowing, the ample grounds for base ball and croquet, the gymnastic apparatus, together with the opportunity of military drill, render it certain that this very important matter of physical exercise will not be neglected.

Excursions

in charge of the teachers are occasionally granted the students. Our water facilities and proximity to noted historical localities render these excursions very delightful and profitable.

Government.

The methods of discipline employed are designed to cultivate in students the habit, and develop the power of self-government. But few precepts are enjoined. The government is mild, yet firm and decided.

Association of ladies and gentlemen is permitted, on special application, as far as is thought consistent with studious habits. All association or communication, even in writing, without special excuse is forbidden. Deference to the authority of superiors and to the wishes of equals, neatness, quietness, and industry are inculcated, as essential characteristics of the scholarly lady or gentleman.

The intercourse of the students with each other and the Faculty is expected to conform to the usages of good society. Their admission to the school and enjoyment of its privileges, imply a sacred contract on their part, promptly to observe its regulations. Students persisting in violation of morality and good order, or incurably indolent, will be promptly dismissed, as unworthy a place in this or any other well-regulated literary institution.

The young ladies are under the immediate supervision of an experienced Preceptress. No intercourse with gentlemen students is allowed them, but by special permission, except at the table and in classes. On no occasion can students of the different sexes visit each other's rooms.

Students will not take less than three, or more than four full studies at the same time without special permission.

Co-Education.

After several years' experience and a wide field of observation we are very decidedly in favor of the education of our young people of both sexes in the same school, provided their association is under proper discipline and suitable care, which we claim is had here.

This is unquestionably, in our judgment, the normal, healthy, home-like method. The improvement, under these circumstances, in manners, self-reliance, and social culture, the development of manhood and womanhood is often very marked. We know that some parents are reluctant to send their daughters to schools for both sexes; but this apprehension, we believe, arises chiefly from an insufficient familiarity with the facts. One authority says: "Corrupt influences are more liable to abound in schools exclusively for either sex, but particularly in separate schools for girls." "To insure modesty," says Richter, "I would advise the education of the sexes together; but I will guarantee nothing in a school where girls are alone together, and still less where boys are."

Merit Roll.

A record is made of each student's daily recitations as well as of written examinations, also of deportment. Parents or guardians can obtain a copy of this account at any time by applying to the Principal. At the end of each term every student's record is mailed to the father or guardian. If in any case it is not received within one week after the end of the term, the Principal would like to know of the failure, and will send a second copy.

In order to pass in a study, the average of a student's standing in class recitations and written examinations must be at least seventy on a scale of 100. If below this, the study must be taken again, and a satisfactory examination passed in order to graduate.

Courses of Study.

The College Preparatory Course embraces thorough instruction and drill in the studies required for admission to college. It is designed to prepare students to enter any American college or university.

The Classical Graduating Course is as comprehensive and thorough as that of most seminaries and female colleges. Gentlemen as well as ladies, who may wish to take a systematic academic course, can pursue this to graduation and receive a Diploma.

In the Scientific Department, most of the branches are taught which are comprised in the corresponding department of a collegiate course.

In Drawing, Painting, Wax Work, the fine Arts generally, and Modern Languages, superior advantages for instruction are afforded.

The English course gives a thorough drill in the very important common English branches.

The courses of instruction in the Musical, Oratorical, and Commercial Departments are very thorough and exhaustive.

Students are earnestly advised to enter one of the regular courses, as in this systematic way more and better progress will be made.

Those whose time is limited and who cannot pursue either of the preceding courses, may make a selection of studies, entering the classes for which they are prepared.

Diplomas.

The Institution awards five Diplomas; one to each graduate in the Literary Department; two in the Musical Department; one to the Commercial graduates, and one to graduates in Art.

Most of the Diplomas are on real parchment. A charge of $2.50 will be made for the Diplomas.

Musical Institute.

The first Conservatory of Music in America was opened here in 1859 by Dr. Eben Tourjee, now of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, Boston, who has ever since had more or less of a general over-sight of the interests of the school. No academy in the country has ever been more widely celebrated for the superiority of its musical department. The reputation of its present able director, Prof. O. L. Carter, gives satisfactory assurance still of its excellence in every respect. Pupils are here placed under the same systematic drill, and receive for the most part the same studies which would be given them in the best conservatories in Europe.

An acquaintance with music, to some extent at least, has now become a necessary element of education. As a science, it opens to the scholar a field of investigation most wonderful and beautiful; while, as the medium for expressing the sublimest feelings of which the soul is capable, it is worthy the thought and study of the most intelligent minds.

Courses of Study.

There are two grand courses of study in each of the following departments: Piano-forte, Organ, Vocal Culture, and Musical Composition. The first, called the ACADEMY MUSICAL COURSE, is intended for those not wishing to make a specialty of music, but to take this with other branches. The grade is similar to that of the musical departments of most New England Seminaries. Graduates will receive the diploma of Greenwich Academy.

The second course, called the COMPLETE INSTITUTE COURSE, is higher and more extended, and is for the benefit of those intending to teach, and who wish a more extended course than that furnished by such schools generally. Graduates from this and other schools may thus take a post-graduate course here, and qualify themselves more perfectly for teaching. Those completing this course will receive the diploma of the Musical Institute.

In addition to the above, instruction will be given upon the cornet, clarionet, flute, guitar, etc.

Piano-Forte.

Beginners, and pupils of every stage of advancement are received and assigned to classes in their respective grades. The utmost care is taken to train them thoroughly in all the details of technique, and to properly educate their taste by giving beautiful and attractive pieces from the standard composers, carefully excluding the sentimental class of music so much in vogue among inexperienced and incompetent teachers.

The department is provided with excellent pianos, including a Chickering Grand.

Organ-Playing.

Those intending to become organists should first acquire some skill in playing the piano-forte. The correct position of the hands and the strength and flexibility of the fingers, alike indispensable to the pianist and organist, are far more easily gained at the piano; while the ability to read music, and skill in execution upon the piano, enable the pupil to enter a higher grade, and to progress more rapidly than he could were he to begin with the organ and devote his attention wholly to it.

The course includes studies by the most celebrated writers for the organ.

The Institute is provided with a large two manual Pipe Organ.

Cultivation of the Voice and Solo Singing.

Instruction in this department comprises exercises for promoting the proper action of the respiratory organs ; developing, strengthening, and uniting registers ; the study of the physiology of the vowels and consonants ; the study of solfeggi, and the application of words to music ; exercises for obtaining agility and flexibility of the voice ; the practice of songs for the home circle, and the development of the voice to suit the requirements of the church and public assembly. The importance of proper vocal training, especially in a climate like ours, where abuse or neglect of the vocal organs is likely to be attended with so serious results, can hardly be over-estimated. Careful teachers, and the best and most judicious methods, will be employed in this department.

Harmony.

This department includes a perfect comprehension of the system of musical notation, the manner in which the major and minor tonalities are related to each other, and the relationship of the different keys or scales, a thorough, practical and theoretical knowledge of intervals, and the construction of chords, with the artistic laws which regulate melodic and harmonic progressions.

The General Advantages

for study are most excellent. Weekly choir and chorus practice is afforded music pupils free of expense. A notation class for beginners in vocal music is formed each term, free to regular music pupils. The Academy weekly rhetorical exercises furnish occasions for students to become accustomed to playing in public. Frequent lectures upon musical topics by competent authorities, concerts by the pupils, rehearsals of oratorio music, and at least once each term, a concert by leading artists will be afforded to the music students without charge.

Pupils are earnestly solicited to avail themselves of the unusual facilities here presented of acquiring that symmetrical culture resulting from carrying on the study of literature and music together.

Commercial College.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION.

With only a common school education, the student is admitted at once into the

Theoretical Department,

where he is instructed in the elements of penmanship and letter-writing, drilled in the orthography and signification of mercantile and business terms, and introduced to the Theory of Accounts. Instruction at first is given from the blackboard, and Accounts in the various bearings are carefully and fully explained. He is then supplied with necessary blanks and books, and proceeds to write up five distinct sets of books, two of which represent partnership business. In this he becomes familiar with the Day Book, Journal, Cash Book, and Ledger. Meantime he is taught how to draw up Receipts, Notes, Drafts, Orders, Bills of Exchange, etc., to make out Account Sales, Accounts Current, Invoices, etc., and weekly listens to lectures on topics connected with the studies. He thoroughly reviews the principles of journalizing, posting, making balance sheets, and statements of a complete set of books; and if he is found to possess a clear understanding of the Science of Accounts, he is passed into the

where he puts into practice the knowledge acquired in the Theoretical Department. In this there are four special divisions, the first of which is the Retail Department.

He is assigned his stand, furnished with books and an actual cash capital of three thousand dollars; he has access to a wholesale store, from which to purchase a stock of goods, to the bank, post, railroad, and express offices; from the bank he receives his check-books, deposit tickets, and certificate of deposit; from the stationer, blank forms of notes, drafts, bills of lading, bonds, mortgages, etc.; he deals in real estate, stocks, and all kinds of negotiable paper; he deposits money in the bank and checks it out; he makes shipments and receives consignments through the railroad and steamboat lines; he enters company business of from two to six partners; makes co-partnership settlements and assignments; in short, he here pursues a course of business that cannot fail to give him a clear insight into the regular transactions of life. Having sustained a satisfactory examination, he is received into the Wholesale Department.

In this he commences business with the assets and liabilities of his predecessors, and must always see that their books and balance sheets are correct before assuming the responsibility of the concern. The books used were taken from the very first wholesale houses in New York City. He uses the sales, shipping, invoice, inventory, and cash books, the journal, personal, and representative ledgers. Thence he enters the Commission Department.

In this he puts up a set comprising a business of two months, and becomes familiar with the receiving, sales, and cash books, journal, and ledger. This completed he enters the Banking Department.

The bank is fitted up with every convenience. It is a regular bank of issue and deposit, and all the complicated transactions pertaining to banking are made here. Weekly statements are made and quarterly dividends declared. Money, notes, and drafts are deposited; drafts and checks are cashed; sums loaned, notes discounted, and acceptances made. On entering the bank the student is first collection clerk, then discount clerk, then second teller, first teller, and finally cashier. He is now admitted to the final examination.

Penmanship.

The system of penmanship now generally acknowledged by teachers and business men to be superior to all others is the Spencerian, and it has been introduced into this College. Under this superior plan of instruction, any, even the most awkward writer, can acquire a rapid, legible, and handsome handwriting, by faithfully devoting to it a small fraction of his time during the course.

Telegraphy.

All over the country there is a continual call for young men to take charge of telegraph offices. Competent operators command at all times good salaries; and, any one, in the course of three or four months, at an expense of seventy-five or a hundred dollars, can fit himself for a position worth from five hundred to a thousand dollars a year. No position is so paying, pleasant, and honorable, for the sacrifice made to obtain it as this.

In view of the importance attached to this Art, we have fitted up three telegraph offices, and have supplied them with all the conveniences and fixtures of the very best offices. Instruction is given by one of the best sound operators.

Telegraphy is not in the regular course. It has been found, however, that by devoting an hour or two each day to this, students who take the regular course can complete it very nearly as soon as those who devote all their time to it. Certificates are given to those who thoroughly complete it.

Business Arithmetic.

The student is thoroughly instructed in the best and most practical methods of computing interest, percentage, discount, commission, taxes, insurance, brokerage, equasion of payments, allegation, exchange, loss and gain, currencies, co-partnership, settlements, etc., etc.

Correspondence.

Very special attention is given to this important branch of a business education, in which, on the part of so many, there is a lamentable deficiency. Letters are written upon topics assigned by the teachers, which are carefully criticised, both in orthography and construction.

Commercial Law.

A thorough knowledge of this part of the course is obtained by the student, not only from a course of study, but from lectures delivered by accomplished lawyers.

Library and Reading-Room.

Commercial students by paying the sum of twenty-five cents per term, can have access to the Academy Library and Reading-room, the latter of which is supplied with the best religious, political, and educational papers and periodicals.

General Information.

BOARD. — Students can board and room in the Hall, upon same terms as Seminary Students. See page 37.

STATIONERY AND BOOKS. — The entire cost including the Commercial Arithmetic, is about $16.00. Two works on Book-keeping have been prepared expressly for the use of students of this College ; one for the Theoretical Department, and one for the Actual Business Department. All the stationery required for the course is sold at the office of the Commercial College. Blank books of the very best material have been manufactured, adapted to the several sets of book-keeping of this department. The forms of the different sets have been taken from the best business establishments in the country.

PREPARATORY QUALIFICATIONS. — A common school education is all that is required to enter. If the student is found deficient in any part of it, he can be instructed by teachers, not only in the college, but by those in the academic department.

TIME REQUIRED. — The time required to complete the Commercial Course, will vary with the advancement, ability, and application of the student. Some will complete it in twelve weeks, others would not do it in twenty. The average term is about sixteen weeks. Individual instruction is given, and the student can proceed as rapidly as he chooses.

The superior advantages enjoyed at this Commercial college and the adaptation of our system of instruction to prepare young men for active life, are evident from the fact that our graduates take high rank as business men in all parts of the country, and many of them are now occupying responsible and lucrative positions in almost all the various departments of business. On account of the reduced prices of board, tuition and other necessary expenditures, the total cost for the Business Course is at least fifty dollars less than at many other Commercial Colleges, especially at those where students are obliged to board in private families in large cities. The MORAL INFLUENCE bearing upon students here is an important consideration to those obliged to send their sons away to obtain an education.

"Probably the most liberal and catholic and truly just institution of learning ever established." — The Commonwealth.

"A city is itself a great university, Boston particularly so; and the plan of this institution, as rightly indicated by its name, is to organize into a great educational corporation the means of instruction so abundantly spread out in that city. Other colleges and universities gather their corps of instructors only by arduous selection and at great expense, and even then may find it difficult to create that society of letters and atmosphere of culture so essential to the growth of scholars." — Springfield Republican.

1. The University has established a higher standard of requirements for Classical degrees than is found in any other in the world.

2. It was the first one in the United States to present in Theology, Law and Medicine, uniform, graded courses of instruction covering three scholastic years, and to require in each case, in order to graduation, the full three years of study.

3. Its departments of Oratory and Music have in standard and scope no counterparts in any other University.

4. It is the only one in the country which offers four years' courses in Medicine and the Baccalaureate Degree in Medicine and Surgery.

5. It was the first in America to organize a School of All Sciences for graduate students exclusively.

6. It is the only one in the world which opens to women the whole circle of liberal and professional education.
